well, I'm home in NY now...it's a long story why and how i got here but I'm sure you'll all find out one version of the story or another. And really it wasn't either one of us' fault. We both pushed eachother's buttons and it got out of hand. I went to jail for a weekend, he placed an order of protection and now i'm here. While i was in Jail for the weekend I took a lot of time (ha ha right?) to think about why I was there. And I realized it was all about control. Neither one of us has any control over our lives, God does and this was his way of saying that we needed to check our lives and realize what we were doing to eachother. As much as I wish I could have seen all the years we had planned to see together, is all the pain we were causing eachother worth it? Not really (no offense meant). I would have loved to have worked it out but neither one of us was taking out meds like we should have been and that was one problem and two, we just didn't get anytime alone, and three, most of our problems started when we invited guests and it got really stressful. I'm sorry for what I have done and now I'm trying to get my life on track. I have forgiven but not forgotten for future reference, the emotional wounds are healing, and I hold no grudges.

Karen, as i said before I'm sorry for our argument the other day, it was a bad day. I'm sure you've figured that out already. I love you lots and I care about you too. hugs

Alex, if you read this: I am home in NY and I'm okay as my mom has probably told you and I will call you when it's more appropriate for your time :) And my dad made sure I got your hair from the old apartment too :) My daddy loves me....

PS: Broken Deep: What are you talking about me being a slut? Did I miss a rumor or something?

I've been quite busy actually....working and sleeping and occasionally I'm able to find time to actually eat.....all but two days this week they've kept me later than scheduled...hell, jeff tried to beat around the bush today but I beat him to the punch, I was already off the clock..."sooooo, uh, Jennifer, how late are you here today?" "I'm already off the clock. Sorry..." " Oh...welll...uh...okay..."

hehehe. in other news, my car broke and I haven't figured out what the heck is wrong with it yet...and since it'll be awhile until mat and I have the money to even have it looked and and be able to be paid for I had dad take the insurance off it. It's not going anywhere seeing as to how it won't start...(which could be a number of possibilites...although the fact that it's the starter is where it gets confusing, cause it was running when it stopped working...so the starter may be bad but there's gotta be another problem somewhere....

Anywho...not much going on out here....

"Think of the religions of the world as languages. What is the essence of all languages? Communication. Different words, grammar, etc. One goal. Each language is a product of unique history, culture, etc. Different paths to the same destination. Apply this to religion. What is the essence of all religions? Communion with the Divine. Different rituals, practices, etc. One goal. Each religion is the product of unique history, culture, etc. Different paths with the same destination. Thus, to say that one religion is the "correct" or "only true" one is as foolish as saying French is the only true language. The Divine goes by many names, and is perceived through the lens of many cultures and peoples. The apparent differences come not from the unchangeable Divine, but from duality inherent to us." -"Nerdy" Nathan Fostey

GRRRRRRRRRRR...not having that good of a day today, Mat being it's prime annoyance...just cause he has to stay up all night doesn't mean he has to do it and annoy me at the same time! BOO HISS!

this sucks...just heard there's a Twiztid concert in NY on my birthday...and of course I'm going to be in Ohio on my birthday...no friends to celebrate with, no party to have, which eliminates the possibility of my getting raped again, but still all the more shitty...

I start work on Wednesday, supposed to be getting a puter this weekend...which means mat doesn't get his living room set but we don't spend anytime down there anyways so what's the point...the computer will get used more so spending the money on it is better than wasting money on aleather couch that won't get sat on...

Anyone wanna donate to my "go to england" fund...j/k...it would be nice tho...hell I'd even love to be able to see Karen this summer...

Last night actually went pretty well after a bit of a rough start...Mat and I were able to talk and actually get a better understanding of how we each are feeling so that's cool. Five more days all you Jamestown people and I'll not being seeing you again in forever proolly...going to a party tonight which i'm questioning cause Mat's ex, candy (the person who caused the rough start) is apparently going to be there...all in all she knows mat and I are just splitting up and she asked him out the other night and he told her he didn't want to rush into anything and nothing is set in stone so of course when she was in his lap last night i was a bit upset but mat and I talked about it and apparently she was doing it intentionally to piss me off and she told Starr a few things that weren't true either...so wish me luck tonight guys! when I'm drunk I'm very verbal about how i'm feeling...and you know what the most fucked up thing is, I didn't even start with her last night, I blamed it all on mat at first and directed my anger towards him and was nice to her cause i figured she was innocent and didn't know...figures I was wrong. I'm Just glad I got friends to back me up...including Mat himself..

You know what my biggest problem is with this whole Mat thing...even though we aren't dating my heart is still with him and I still feel loyal to him...like if I were to go and see someone else I'd be cheating on him is how I feel right now...I hate when it takes me forever to figure shit out sometimes...
